

Improving the information received by women of child bearing age about the use of psychotropic medications

Improving the information received by women of child bearing age about the use of psychotropic medications

Aim

- To ensure 100% of women admitted to the East London Mother and Baby Unit receive information about their medication and its effect on pregnancy and breastfeeding by June 2017.

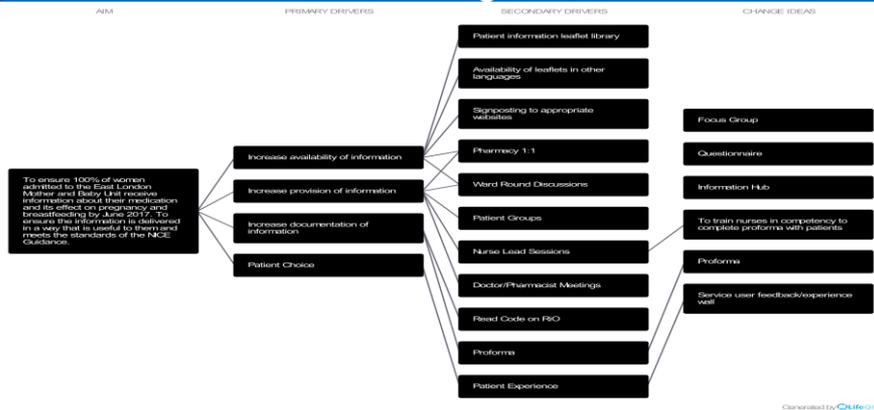

Why is this important to service users and carers?

NICE Guidance for Antenatal Postnatal Mental health has evidenced based standards around information that is prescribed to women of reproductive age including in pregnancy and breast feeding.

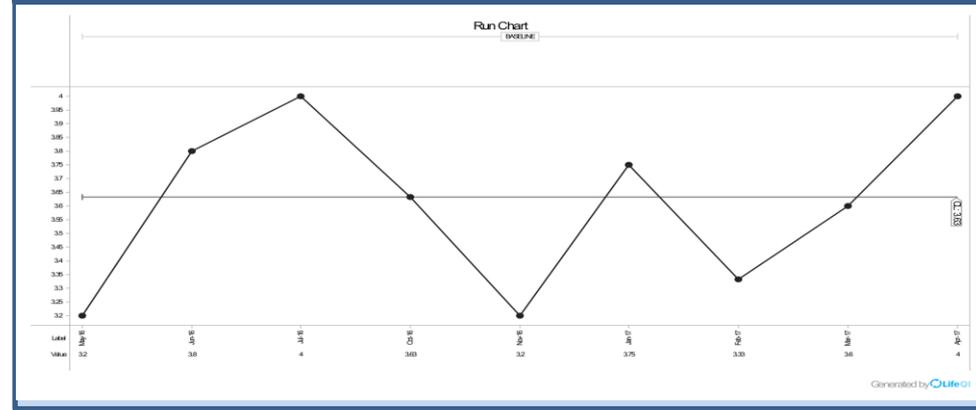

Tests of Change

To train nurses in the competency to complete the proforma with patients
